

Lesson 5 Circle the indirect object in each sentence below.

1. Charlie's uncle gave Charlie a ticket to a comic book convention.
2. Charlie's aunt gave them a ride to the convention center.
3. Inside, dealers offered collectors rare comic books.
4. Some collectors were paying dealers large sums for the best comics.
5. Charlie showed a dealer his prize old comic.
6. On the cover, a villain was giving a superhero a blast of supersonic cold rays.
7. The dealer offered Charlie a trade for another rare comic.
8. Charlie and his uncle gave the trade careful consideration.
9. They made the dealer an offer for two comics.
10. On the convention stage, a famous illustrator told the audience stories about his career.
11. The illustrator's friends had often given him ideas for comic book heroes.
12. An archaeologist friend had given him the inspiration for Dino-Woman.
13. She had told the illustrator many fascinating tales about dinosaurs.
14. The illustrator's talents had won him many awards.
15. Afterwards, the illustrator drew Charlie a picture and then signed it.

Lesson 6 Write PN if the boldfaced term is a predicate noun. Write PA if the boldfaced term is a predicate adjective. Circle the linking verb in each sentence.

1. The rafflesia is a flower. _____
2. Its home is the rain forest. _____
3. These blossoms are huge. _____
4. Some blossoms are three feet wide. _____
5. They look beautiful. _____
6. The thick, heavy petals are dark red. _____
7. Rafflesias smell terrible, however. _____
8. The flower's scent is the smell of rotten meat. _____
9. But this scent smells wonderful to flies. _____
10. Flies are the main pollinators of this rare plant. _____
11. Rafflesias have become endangered. _____
12. Rain forest logging and slash-and-burn agriculture are the main threats to the flower's survival. _____
13. The rafflesia is still so little understood. _____
14. Scientists are hopeful about future studies of this plant. _____
15. The extinction of this plant would be a tragedy. _____

Name _____